Less than 10 minutes to assemble

The Incept inflatable sea kayaks pack down into light, compact airline baggage - inclusive of pump, decks, seats, pedals and rudder! And carry an impressive load of crew and gear! And once familiar with the adjustments and fittings, you will take less than 10 minutes to assemble!

There is universal acclaim and consistent praise for speed and handling sufficient to keep up with hard-shell kayakers. Decks are opened up with water resistant zips so it is a simple matter to effectively stow and access expedition gear.

Surprisingly strong and stable, the Tasman and Pacific inflatable sea kayaks will handle big seas and survive impacts which would break rigid hulls. Made of durable reinforced polyurethane alloy, given basic care these kayaks will take the knocks and give exceptional service.

Built to take 1 and 2 persons with gear, the Tasman and Pacific kayaks are perfect for multi-day expeditions and just as good for spur-of-the-moment day trips.

Truly jet-setting kayaks, the Incept K40 Tasman and K50 Pacific will repay your choice with reliable, confident and happy boating over many years.

Focus on Performance

Incept inflatable boats are designed by professional engineers - boating enthusiasts - to achieve optimum waterline shapes and exceptional handling. Not only the sponsons but also the self bailing floors are tapered and rockered - careful consideration is given to every trade-off factor that exists in inflatable boat design.

The kayak designers gave special attention to primary and secondary stability and to the hydro-dynamic flow around the stern, the major contributor to speed performance. The uniquely shaped side sponsons and inflatable floor are carefully integrated resulting in long life, excellent performance, good stability, good tracking and top handling qualities.
